This is not an area that I am familiar with, however I was able to find a "Prepublication Review Manual" from 2005 on FBINet [redacted] which seems pretty thorough. I note that I did not see anything in there about POC of the contract (not exactly sure who that is) reviewing the proposed publication "for classified, proprietary information or such information."

I note the following language, however;

2. RMD Processes Review Request

RMD will conduct the prepublication review, answer questions from employees about the prepublication review process, and review and process all requests as follows:

2.1.1. If RMD concludes that no review is required, it will inform the employee in writing.

2.1.2. If RMD concludes that review is required, it will conduct the review.

2.1.3. RMD may consult or coordinate with any person who can assist in determining how to proceed with the prepublication review process. This may include seeking help to assess the content or potential impact of the proposed disclosure or to initiate appropriate responses to the proposed disclosure.

I am not qualified to make a determination of whether material is classified, proprietary or such information. I think that a subject matter expert in the technical field and a classification expert need to address those issues, see the example in the Manual in the above quoted section.

I think that there needs to be further discussion with [redacted] to clarify who is qualified to review the book for classified or proprietary information.

I hope this helps. Please let me know if you have any additional questions.

Hi Jon,

Yes, contractors are required to go through the prepublication review process. I generally ask for the POC of the contract that you are working under or have you to sent it to that POC for review. The POC reviews it for classified, proprietary information or such information. The POC will then send me an email with their conclusions. I also would like a copy of the book for my records. If you need anything else, please email or call me.

Thank you

I reached out to [redacted] who referred me to OPA [redacted] said that most likely the Bureau b6 -2 would want to review the draft publication to make sure no classified information was including in the writing because of the subject matter. He said sometimes Records Management does want to review and sometimes not, it depends on the subject. If required, a draft copy would need to be submitted to Records Management, Information Dissemination Section, Publication Review Office. The RMD Directory has [redacted] listed as the POC. Mr. Ellch might want to touch base b6 -1 with the PRO office to see if they have any time requirements for reviewing material. If the PRO does require a review, you might want a copy of their approval/rejection for record.

Thank you

Hi [redacted] b6 -2
here is that paragraph describing the updated book.

The work under review is the second edition of "Hacking Exposed: Wireless" (McGraw Hill, 2007).
The first edition was published before I started working with the bureau. The publisher has requested that myself and two co-authors work on the next edition. The next edition is largely a update of the previous work (newer tools, updated software, etc). It has some extra content relating to DECT and Bluetooth, none of which is related to any work I perform with Harris or the bureau, and was actually written by one of the co-authors.

The book does cover commercially and freely available wireless security programs that I use while performing my job at the Bureau, but has no references to any FBI resources (programs, people, etc).
Also the publisher obviously lists me as a employee of Harris Corp.

If necessary I can provide the content in hardcopy or .doc/.pdf (whichever is most convenient).

Thanks for the help,
Jon Ellch

Also, just to be clear, none of the content explicitly deals with anything specific to my time at the bureau. It just covers technology that is used both inside and outside.

Hello [redacted]

I forwarded Mr. Ellch's manuscript per an earlier email.

I am the Coordinator of the Prepublication Review Office. My office's function is to review intended publications by current/former FBI employees to determine if the employee has included information obtained during FBI employment, which should not otherwise be released. Examples would be classified information, Rule 6e, sensitive techniques, pending investigations or prosecutions, personal privacy info, FBI information not available to the general public through means such as FOIPA, the media or court records, etc.

As is more common than not, it is necessary that we call upon FBI "subject matter experts" to review the submissions of current/former FBI employees as the subject matter at issue is beyond the general expertise of my employees.

Would you please have someone in your office review a manuscript that we received from Jon Ellch (Contractor) titled, "Building Your Wireless Toolkit." Please provide us your conclusions regarding the information in question. Should you have questions, please feel free to call or email me.

General Rules-We have 30 business days to respond to the author. We would like to respond to the requester as soon as we can. Also, as the material is proprietary information, it is not to be disclosed/shared beyond those persons involved in the review process

You can forward me your comments by email.

Thank you

We'll be happy to review the material here. Can you send us a copy and let us know if there is some formal procedure we have to follow?

Also, FYI, Jon has previously published manuscripts on the subject dating from before his work with us and he is also aware of the need to not divulge sensitive knowledge he gained through working with us, so we don't expect a problem. But we're happy to make sure that's the case.

I reached out to [REDACTED] who referred me to OPA [REDACTED] said that most likely the Bureau would want to review the draft publication to make sure no classified information was including in the writing because of the subject matter. He said sometimes Records Management does want to review and sometimes not, it depends on the subject. If required, a draft copy would need to be submitted to Records Management, Information Dissemination Section, Publication Review Office. The RMD Directory has [REDACTED] listed as the POC. Mr. Ellch might want to touch base with the PRO office to see if they have any time requirements for reviewing material. If the PRO does require a review, you might want a copy of their approval/rejection for record.

Hi [redacted]
here is that paragraph describing the updated book.

The work under review is the second edition of "Hacking Exposed: Wireless" (McGraw Hill, 2007). The first edition was published before I started working with the bureau. The publisher has requested that myself and two co-authors work on the next edition. The next edition is largely a update of the previous work (newer tools, updated software, etc). It has some extra content relating to DECT and Bluetooth, none of which is related to any work I perform with Harris or the bureau, and was actually written by one of the co-authors.

The book does cover commercially and freely available wireless security programs that I use while performing my job at the Bureau, but has no references to any FBI resources (programs, people, etc). Also the publisher obviously lists me as a employee of Harris Corp.

If necessary I can provide the content in hardcopy or .doc/.pdf (whichever is most convenient).

Thanks for the help,
Jon Ellch

b6 -2

I've finally been able to review Jon's manuscript. From my review, I do not believe that it contains any information gained during his employment with the FBI that should not be released and seems to consist solely of open source information.

Please let me know if you require anything further.

I'll let Jon know that I have responded to you.

Thanks,

Hello [redacted]

I forwarded Mr. Ellch's manuscript per an earlier email.

I am the Coordinator of the Prepublication Review Office. My office's function is to review intended publications by current/former FBI employees to determine if the employee has included information obtained during FBI employment, which should not otherwise be released. Examples would be classified information, Rule 6e, sensitive techniques, pending investigations or prosecutions, personal privacy info, FBI information not available to the general public through means such as FOIPA, the media or court records, etc.

Second Edition of "Hacking Exposed: Wireless"

As is more common than not, it is necessary that we call upon FBI "subject matter experts" to review the submissions of current/former FBI employees as the subject matter at issue is beyond the general expertise of my employees.

Would you please have someone in your office review a manuscript that we received from Jon Elch (Contractor) titled, "Building Your Wireless Toolkit." Please provide us your conclusions regarding the information in question. Should you have questions, please feel free to call or email me.

General Rules-We have 30 business days to respond to the author. We would like to respond to the requester as soon as we can. Also, as the material is proprietary information, it is not to be disclosed/shared beyond those persons involved in the review process

You can forward me your comments by email.

Thank you

Hi [redacted]

We'll be happy to review the material here. Can you send us a copy and let us know if there is some formal procedure we have to follow?

Also, FYI, Jon has previously published manuscripts on the subject dating from before his work with us and he is also aware of the need to not divulge sensitive knowledge he gained through working with us, so we don't expect a problem. But we're happy to make sure that's the case.

Let me know.

She needs to speak with a government TPOC to determine that there are not any sensitive law enforcement techniques used by STAO noted in the manuscript prepared by Jon. Since I am not a subject matter expert on this, I was hoping you could give her a call to respond to her questions and to assist with getting this approved/resolved for Jon so that he can get his manuscript turned in/published.

Please let me know if you are not able to respond to her and if so, who you recommend we forward her question (below) to

This is not an area that I am familiar with, however I was able to find a "Prepublication Review Manual" from 2005 on FBI Net [redacted] which seems pretty thorough. I note that I did not see anything in there about POC of the contract (not exactly sure who that is) reviewing the proposed publication "for classified, proprietary information or such information." b7E -4

I note the following language, however;

2. RMD Processes Review Request

RMD will conduct the prepublication review, answer questions from employees about the prepublication review process, and review and process all requests as follows:

2.1.1. If RMD concludes that no review is required, it will inform the employee in writing.

2.1.2. If RMD concludes that review is required, it will conduct the review.

2.1.3. RMD may consult or coordinate with any person who can assist in determining how to proceed with the prepublication review process. This may include seeking help to assess the content or potential impact of the proposed disclosure or to initiate appropriate responses to the proposed disclosure.

Example: RMD may provide a copy of a proposed disclosure to FBI employees with specialized knowledge in order to assess whether the disclosure contains classified information.

2.1.4. RMD may apprise appropriate FBI management officials of impending

I am not qualified to make a determination of whether material is classified, proprietary or such information. I think that a subject matter expert in the technical field and a classification expert need to address those issues, see the example in the Manual in the above quoted section.

I think that there needs to be further discussion with [redacted] to clarify who is qualified to review the book for classified or proprietary information. b6 -2

I hope this helps. Please let me know if you have any additional questions.

I got ahold of [REDACTED] to see if she had any more insight. If my understanding is correct since you're the [REDACTED] you are the POC she is referring to. Do you want to meet again to go over the book? Should I bring in some word or pdf files? It's easy to see from the stacks of paper in your office you're really busy. Thanks for taking the time to help me figure out how to handle this.

Hi Jon,

that you are working under or have you to sent it to that POC for review. The POC reviews it for classified, proprietary information or such information. The POC will then send me an email with their conclusions. I also would like a copy of the book for my records. If you need anything else, please email or call me.

Thank you

[REDACTED] (below) is m [REDACTED] She has inquired up the chain around here. There seems to be confusion on two issues. I've heard basically the same as what [REDACTED] has explained, but she has done one better in that she has provided POCs to work through. But I don't know how much/little it might affect a contractor who works for the FBI. I've heard that these are the ropes a current or former FBI employee must go through to be (pre)approved in writing a book that might reference a facet of the FBI. I wish I knew more on this account. But I don't. Guess we'll have to research this further to find out more.
